Course duration in academic hours | 40 hrs
Credits (ECTS) | 2 credits

Course description

Includes topics: “Language diversity and law”; “Language diversity in the workplace”

The aim of this module is to familiarize participants with research related to forms, functions and consequences of linguistic diversity in formal and informal institutional contexts. This includes a focus on qualitative research methods, including critical sociolinguistic ethnography and media discourse analysis. The module format includes lectures, seminars, group work and self-study. Assessment is based on the design of a personal interest research project, to be presented and discussed with the Summer School scholars.
