Summer Semester 2022

Dear Students,

We are delighted that the coronavirus pandemic situation appears set to improve over the next few months and that, at this point in time, we can assume we will be able to offer an in-person summer semester.

Most of the courses are being planned as in-person courses—so life will return to the University's campus and buildings. Where it makes sense for subject-specific or educational reasons, certain courses will continue to be conducted digitally or in a hybrid format in the future. The subjects decide on the workload for digital courses.

You will be notified via the coronavirus FAQ (www.uni-hamburg.de/corona-faq) which protective and hygiene measures (e.g., wearing masks) will be in place for the summer semester. The measures will depend on the development of the pandemic and the City of Hamburg's coronavirus containment ordinance.

After two years of predominantly digital teaching and learning at universities, the return to in-person courses will be a special step for all University members. We look forward to seeing you and hope you will be able to use the summer semester to the full: getting to know your fellow students and experiencing and shaping life on campus with all its diverse opportunities!

Sincerely,

Prof. Dr. Susanne Rupp
