Introduction

In this research-oriented Master's program, students learn to take up complex problems from Economic Sciences and to solve them using mathematical methods, even beyond the limits of the current state of knowledge. Taking into account the requirements and changes in the professional world and the interdisciplinary references, the program is designed to teach the necessary subject-specific methods and to expand the mathematical and economic skills and knowledge that enable students to work scientifically, to apply and critically classify scientific findings, and to act responsibly.

In the first two semesters, you will deepen your knowledge of both mathematics and economics in lectures and seminars. You can choose from a wide range of courses offered primarily by the Department of Mathematics, the Faculty of Business Administration and the Department of Economics. In the 3rd semester at the latest, you will then be introduced to current research and in this way prepared for the Master's thesis, with which you will complete your studies in the 4th semester.
